Program

Participants will learn about how to provide robust alternative and augmentative (AAC) and teaching language skills. This will allow participants to make a real difference in the students' life and help them feel more connected with other people. We will look at what our instincts sometimes tell us to do when using AAC and if it's the right decision to make. This course will be applicable for anyone working with students in the earliest stages of being a communicator to more advanced AAC users. If you have any questions about this course, please reach out to the presenter.

Katrin Sannig

My name is Katrin Sannig and I'm a Speech-Language Pathologist. I'm excited to support children, youth and their families and help them achieve their learning goals. I enjoy that I can collaborate with other PCS team members, school staff, community agencies and parents as I truly believe the best outcomes can be achieved through teamwork. In my position with PCS I cover schools in Valleyview and Ridgevalley.

I was born and raised in Germany, attended university there and now live outside of the hamlet of Little Smoky, where my spouse and I are raising our two children. We enjoy traveling and hosting international travelers at our place.

I'm looking forward to connecting with each of you.
